

Teach a Child Net-1: How to Say Thank You

- Say the person's Name
- Look the person in the Eye
- Tell the person "Thanks!"
- Say at least 1 thing you like

There are all kinds of opportunities to teach children how to express gratitude, especially the holidays. Remember to do a good job of saying thanks yourself, so you model for the children.

Give your kids some practice using Net-1, especially the little ones. Pick a few items they really like and pretend you are giving them as a gift, so they can follow the steps for practice.

Example: Look your aunt in the eye and say, "Aunt Connie, thank you! I love the color of this sweater and it feels so warm."

Don't Forget

Be sure to praise kids when they do it right. When they actually receive a gift, watch them, and if they skip a step, nicely assist by saying something like: "And how about the '1?'" or "What about the 'E?'"
